Brucella seropositivity in South and Southeast Turkey for early diagnosis. It is also important to take drastic measures to decrease the morbidity and mortality of disease.

Received 20th November 2005. Accepted for publication in final form 24th April 2006.

From the Department of Medical Microbiology (Emekdas, Aslan, Tezcan), Faculty of Medicine, University of Mersin, Mersin, Department of Medical Microbiology (Ciragil), Faculty of Medicine, University of Sutcu Imam, Kahramanmaras, Department of Medical Microbiology (Bayraktar), Faculty of Medicine, University of Inonu, Malatya, Department of Infectious Diseases Medical, Microbiology (Onlen), Faculty of Medicine, University of Mustafa Kemal, Hatay, Department of Medical Microbiology (Aktas), Faculty of Medicine, University of Ataturk, Erzurum, Department of Infectious Disease (Bosnak), City Hospital, Diyarbakir and the Department of Biostatistics (Kanik), Faculty of Medicine, University of Mersin, Turkey. Address correspondence and reprint requests to: Dr. Gurol Emekdas, Mersin Universitesi Tip FakOitesi, Mikrobiyoloji ve Klinik Mikrobiyoloji Anabilim Dah 33169, Mersin, Turkey. Tel. +90 (324) 342815-565. E-mail: gemekdas@mersin.edu.tr, gemekdas@yahoo.com, drgaslan@mersin.edu.tr

References

Erratum

In manuscript “Gene expression profiles of the fibroblasts from breast tumors and normal tissue compared with the tumor expression profiles” Saudi Medical Journal 2006; Vol. 27 (4): 463-469, the title on the highlights should have appeared as follows: Gene expression profiles of the fibroblasts from breast tumors and normal tissue compared with the tumor expression profiles